Clark County High Capacity Transit study exploring potential corridors

Clark County, WA – The Clark County High Capacity Transit (HCT) System Study is evaluating various HCT transit technologies and travel corridors in Clark County to determine which will best meet the future transit needs of county residents. Throughout the study, community input is being sought to guide the study process. One source of community input is the study Task Force, an advisory group whose primary charge is to provide input on public values and concerns. The Task force is a group of fourteen representatives from a range of community interests, including local colleges, businesses, neighborhood associations, environmental groups, health and safety organizations, building trade associations, education, transit users, and youth and leadership councils. The Task Force meets monthly and the public is invited to attend and observe the meetings.

The next Task Force meeting will be on March 8th at 6:00 p.m. at the Clark County Elections Building, 1408 Franklin St., Vancouver. The Task Force will gather input on the study's evaluation framework and explore potential travel corridors for HCT within the Clark County region.
